

Information for Law Enforcement Authorities

The following operational guidelines are for law enforcement officials or authorized government agencies seeking certain records from the affiliates¹ of Robinhood Markets, Inc. (collectively, “Robinhood”).

Robinhood appreciates the work of authorized government agencies and law enforcement authorities around the world to keep people and communities safe. Upon receipt, Robinhood is prepared to review, validate, and respond to law enforcement requests based on applicable law and policy. This information may be updated at any time.

Civil requests should be served upon the relevant registered agent (United States) or registered office.

Submission of Law Enforcement Requests

Except in extraordinary circumstances, Robinhood requires a valid subpoena, warrant, court order, summons or other similar document issued by a government agency or law enforcement official (“Legal Request”) before disclosure of personal data or other regulated information.

Legal Requests must be addressed to the appropriate Robinhood entity(ies). Robinhood also reserves the right to direct any requesting law enforcement authority or authorized government agency to make requests via the appropriate legal channels, including any applicable mutual legal assistance frameworks. Please include as much specific information as possible that would identify the relevant Robinhood account(s) and/or transactions.

To ensure a timely response by Robinhood, Legal Requests should be sent to LERequests@robinhood.com. Please do not send any Legal Request or other inquiries to Robinhood Support or any other channel not intended for law enforcement. If you do so, you should expect longer response times. Currently, our minimum response time is approximately 45 days from receipt of valid legal process. Robinhood will not respond to correspondence sent by non-law enforcement officials to the email address above.

Receipt of a Legal Request through the LERequests@robinhood.com email is for convenience purposes only. Robinhood does not waive, and does not intend to waive, any potentially applicable objections, including lack of jurisdiction or proper service.

Robinhood will search for and disclose information that is specified with particularity in an appropriate form of Legal Request and which we are reasonably able to locate and retrieve. As stated in the relevant privacy policies, we may collect, use, preserve, and disclose customer or account information to an authorized governmental agency or law enforcement official if we believe that it is in accordance with, or required by, any applicable law, legal process, court order, or legal investigation, or to protect and defend the rights, interests, safety, and security of Robinhood, our users, or the public.

Form of Requests

We will be unable to process overly broad or vague requests. All requests must identify the requested records from the relevant Robinhood entity(ies) with particularity and include the following information:

- Name of the issuing authority, badge or ID number of responsible agent, email address from a law enforcement domain, and direct contact phone number;
- Relevant Robinhood entity(ies); and
- Robinhood account number(s).

Robinhood exercises reasonable efforts to respond in a timely manner to Legal Requests that are validly issued and served in full compliance with applicable law. Responses can take approximately 45 days from receipt to complete depending on the complexity of the Legal Request. For a quicker response, please (i) limit the scope of your Legal Request to only those records necessary for your legal matter; (ii) correctly identify the applicable Robinhood entity(ies) to whom your request is directed; and (iii) ensure your Legal Request clearly lists uniquely identifying information, such as an account number or tax identification number.

Notification

Robinhood reserves the right to notify customers who use our services of requests for their information prior to disclosure, unless we are prohibited by law from doing so or in exceptional circumstances, emergencies, or when notice would be counterproductive.

Testimony

Robinhood does not provide expert testimony or witness support. Robinhood records are self-authenticating pursuant to law and should not require the testimony of a records custodian. If a special form of certification is required, please attach it to your Legal Request.

Fees for Compliance

Robinhood reserves the right to charge reasonable administrative fees (unless otherwise prohibited by law) for the production of documents in response to any Legal Request. Such fees apply on a per account basis. We may also charge additional fees for costs incurred in responding to unusual or burdensome requests. Robinhood reserves the right to waive such fees in matters investigating potential harm to Robinhood, its customers, and emergency requests.
