Effective April 1, 2026

Introduction	Robinhood Financial LLC (“Robinhood Financial”, “RHF,” “we,” “our,” or “us”) is registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission as a broker-dealer and is a member of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (“FINRA”) and the Securities Investor Protection Corporation (“SIPC”). Brokerage and investment advisory services and fees differ; and it is important that you understand these differences. Free and simple tools are available for you to research firms and financial professionals at Investor.gov/CRS, which also provides educational materials about broker-dealers, investment advisers, and investing.
What investment services and advice can you provide me?	Robinhood Financial offers brokerage services to retail investors. Our primary business is providing retail customers with an app-based brokerage platform (“App”) to place orders to buy and sell stocks, exchange-traded funds (“ETFs”), closed-end funds (“CEFs”) and other securities or investment strategies such as trading on margin or using options strategies. Robinhood also provides educational content and tools for investors to learn about trading and the markets. We provide certain retail customers with recommendations to enroll in our fully paid securities lending (“Stock Lending”) program (“Stock Lending Recommendation”). Stock Lending Recommendations are made via email and App, and can be acted upon via the App. Not all customers are eligible for Stock Lending, and among eligible customers, not all will receive a recommendation to enroll in Stock Lending. While there is not an account minimum requirement to receive this recommendation, having a certain account value is one method of eligibility. Additional information about these criteria, certain limitations, and other requirements is available in the RHF Regulation Best Interest Disclosure. Stock Lending Recommendations are point in time recommendations and not monitored for changes. Also, certain retail customers are given an option to receive a recommendation of an asset allocation of ETFs through a proprietary computer algorithm, available exclusively through the App (“Portfolio Recommendation”). This is a point in time brokerage Portfolio Recommendation and is not monitored for future market changes. Portfolio Recommendations are only available for certain ETFs with a minimum investment of $20.00; additional information about these limitations and other information about Portfolio Recommendations is available in the RHF Regulation Best Interest Disclosure. You always make the ultimate decision regarding whether to buy and sell securities (including if you receive a Portfolio Recommendation or Stock Lending Recommendation from us). We do not have any account minimums. Robinhood Financial is an introducing broker-dealer. Your cash and securities will be custodied by our affiliate, Robinhood Securities, LLC (“Robinhood Securities” or “RHS”) and together with Robinhood Financial, “Robinhood”), which services your account by executing, clearing and settling your trades; preparing and distributing your account statements and trade confirmations; and extending credit to margin accounts. We offer NYSE- and NASDAQ-listed stocks, ETFs, CEFs, options and American depositary receipts (“ADRs”), as well as certain stocks and ADRs traded in over-the-counter markets. We also offer fractional shares in many of the same stocks, ETFs, and ADRs. We offer individual and joint brokerage accounts, Traditional and Roth Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs), and custodial (UTMA) accounts. We do not offer mutual funds or fixed income securities, except in the form of an ETF. Robinhood Financial does not provide account or investment monitoring services. Fees may change without notice and any changes will be reflected in the Fee Schedule. Conversation starters: Help me understand how these fees and costs might affect my investments. What are your legal obligations	When we provide you with a recommendation, we have to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask us about

to me when providing Recommendations? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?	these conflicts because they can affect the recommendations we provide you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means: High-Yield Cash Program. Eligible free credit balances and cash held as collateral for settled options positions in your brokerage account may earn interest through our High-Yield Cash Program, which includes both a cash sweep program and a brokerage-held cash program for eligible free credit balances, available to Robinhood Gold subscribers. Robinhood earns compensation in connection with this program, which creates a conflict of interest. Payment for Order Flow. Robinhood earns revenue from your trade activity and therefore has a monetary incentive for you to trade more. Specifically, we earn revenue from third-party market centers to which we route customer orders, so we have an incentive to route orders to market centers that pay or rebate us for such orders, subject to our best execution requirements. Contract Fees for Index Options. Robinhood charges a per-contract fee for each index options contract executed, and therefore, has a monetary incentive for you to trade more. For more specific details, please refer to the Fee Schedule. Principal Trading. RHS is responsible for executing your fractional share orders. When RHS has sufficient inventory in its principal account to facilitate your fractional orders, RHS may execute your fractional orders in a principal capacity. RHS may also source shares from the market and provide you with the same price that RHS received from the market in a riskless principal or agency capacity. When it acts as principal, RHS may make money or lose money on a transaction, depending on a variety of factors. For more information on money RHS can make from trading activity please see our 606 Report within the Disclosure Library. Examples of Other Revenue Robinhood Receives: • Interest on uninvested cash deposited in interest-bearing bank accounts outside the Sweep Program. • Stock loan income from lending the stocks you purchase on margin or through your participation in the fully paid securities lending program. • Payment from a third-party for services rendered in distributing new securities issues. Affiliated Investment Products. Robinhood Financial is affiliated with Robinhood Ventures DE, LLC, an investment adviser, and with one or more affiliated investment funds. Securities issued or managed by affiliated entities may be available on the Robinhood platform. Although Robinhood Financial does not receive additional compensation in connection with these products, this affiliation creates a conflict of interest because we have an incentive to make affiliated products available to customers. Conversation starters: How might your conflicts of interest affect me, and how will you address them? Our response to this question can be found at: robinhd.co/crs-rs. For more information about conflicts of interest, please visit the Robinhood Disclosure Library and the RHF Regulation Best Interest Disclosure.

Robinhood Asset Management, LLC Customer Relationship Summary ("CRS")

Effective February 27, 2026

Introduction	Robinhood Asset Management, LLC ("RAM," "we," "our," or "us") is a registered investment adviser with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Brokerage and investment advisory services and fees differ; and it is important that you understand these differences. Free and simple tools are available for you to research firms and financial professionals at Investor.gov/CRS, which also provides educational materials about broker-dealers, investment advisers, and investing.
What investment services and advice can you provide me?	RAM, doing business as "Robinhood Strategies," provides investment advisory services to retail clients. Clients may open individual taxable accounts, individual retirement accounts ("IRAs"), and custodial (UTMA) accounts with an account minimum of $50. Our primary service includes managed investment portfolios composed of exchange-traded funds ("ETFs"), and for customer accounts with a value of $500 or more, portfolios will include exchange listed stocks, depending on the client's investor profile. The portfolios offered are constructed from a limited number of investments, none of which are proprietary products. Clients are placed in a portfolio which we believe to be in their best interest, based on their investor profile. Client accounts are monitored on a regular basis in order to ensure customer accounts maintain their target portfolio allocation. Additional services include Insights which aim to inform the client on their portfolio updates. When opening a managed account with Robinhood Strategies, you grant us discretionary authority, which is limited to buying and selling investments for you when we believe it is in your best interest to do so, or upon money movement requests from you such as deposits or withdrawals. Clients may not customize their portfolios or instruct us to buy or sell specific investments, but may place reasonable account restrictions. RAM also offers a non-discretionary referral service to connect you to independent, third-party investment advisory firms and their individual advisors, doing business as the "Robinhood Advisor Network". In general, a person must have at least $250,000 in investable assets to receive services from the Robinhood Advisor Network. The third parties may have their own asset or investment minimums, which may be higher $250,000. Interested persons make the ultimate decision regarding their participation in the service. RAM does not monitor any investment activity a referred customer may have with a third-party investment advisor. Please see items 4 and 7 in the Robinhood Advisor Network Form ADV Part 2A brochure available in the disclosure library for more detailed information about our services. Please see Items 4 and 7 in our Form ADV Part 2A brochure available in our disclosure library, for more detailed information about our services. Conversation starters: Given my financial situation, should I choose an investment advisory service? Why or why not? How will you choose investments to recommend to me? What is your relevant experience, including your licenses, education and other qualifications? What do these qualifications mean?
What fees will I pay?	The Robinhood Strategies management fee is calculated as a percentage of Assets Under Management, and is set at 0.25% per annum. The management fee is deducted directly from your account at the beginning of each month, billed monthly in arrears. In addition to the management fee, you are responsible for the payment of third party fees, such as wire fees, transfer fees, and fund expense fees. You will pay fees and costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Fees and costs will reduce any amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please make sure you understand what fees and costs you are paying. RAM does not collect fees for participating in the Robinhood Advisor Network. Instead, an interested person who elects to engage an independent third-party advisor, referred through the Service, will pay such advisor directly under the terms of any investment advisory or similar agreement between themselves and the third-party advisor. Conversation Starters: Help me understand how these fees and costs might affect my investments. If I give you $10,000 to invest, how much will go to fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?
What are your legal obligations to me when acting as my investment adviser? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?	When Robinhood Strategies acts as your investment adviser, we have to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask us about these conflicts because they can affect the investment advice we provide you. Here are examples to help you understand what this means. We and our affiliates earn money from: Management Fees. The more assets there are in your Robinhood Strategies managed account, the more you will pay in fees, and Robinhood Strategies may therefore have an incentive to encourage investors such as you to increase the assets in their account. Third-Party Advisory Fees. Each third-party advisory firm agrees to pay RAM fees for their participation in the RAN referral service. The more referrals that are successfully referred to a third-party advisor, the greater the fees third-party advisors will pay RAM. A percentage of the fee RAM collects is paid to its affiliate, Trade-PMR Inc., an introducing broker-dealer providing advisors a brokerage platform for advisors. Third-party advisors are required to clients of Trade-PMR, which further incentivizes RAM to refer clients to the Service. Robinhood Gold Fees. Robinhood offers a subscription-based service called Robinhood Gold for a fee. Subscribers receive a suite of premium features, which include access to AI generated portfolio digests for Robinhood Strategies managed accounts. Gold subscription fees are disclosed in the Fee Schedule and a list of available Gold features and perks are available here. Affiliated Brokerage. Robinhood Strategies requires clients to direct it to place trades through its affiliated broker dealers, Robinhood Financial, LLC ("RHF") and Robinhood Securities LLC ("RHS"), collectively, ("Robinhood"). Robinhood earns revenue, called payment for order flow, from trade activity in your account. Procedures have been adopted and designed to mitigate this conflict, such as striving for best price and execution. Stock Lending. Robinhood can earn revenue from stock loan income, by lending the stocks that we purchase in your managed account, through your participation in Robinhood's fully paid securities lending program. IntraFi Network Deposit Sweep Program. Robinhood Strategies requires you to have your uninvested cash in your account deposited into an insured account at one or more Program Banks. RHF earns money on the difference (or spread) between the rate at which the Program Bank pays you for the cash and the fees paid to Robinhood by the program banks for the use of your cash, so Robinhood has an incentive to send your cash to the Program Banks, and you receive a lower yield than if the Program Banks did not pay Robinhood a fee. Please see the Robinhood Strategies Form ADV Part 2A brochure and Robinhood Advisor Network Part 2A brochure, available in our disclosure library, for more detailed information about our conflicts of interest. Conversation Starters: How might your conflicts of interest affect me, and how will you address them?

How do your financial professionals make money?	Robinhood Strategies financial professionals receive salaries and bonuses that are based on their overall job responsibilities and performance. Certain customer support or sales personnel may be eligible for variable compensation based on growth driven by their respective teams to Robinhood Markets and its affiliates. This compensation is not specific to Robinhood Strategies and does not depend on driving growth to any particular entity. Conflicts of interest exist as the personnel have an incentive to bring assets onto the Robinhood Markets platform.
Do you or your financial professionals have legal or disciplinary history?	No. Please visit Investor.gov/CRS for a free and simple tool to research our firm and our financial professionals.
